

What You Will Learn:

- How to move your project from just being “on track” to achieving peak team and project performance
- The roles and responsibilities of a project manager
- A six-step process to effectively manage a project from start to finish
- The 10 characteristics of Robert K. Greenleaf’s Servant-Leadership, and how to integrate them into your project management process
- Unique skills to avoid being “bogged down” in the process
- Techniques to bring out the maximum potential of each team member
- Tips to enhance and strengthen your own leadership skills

Leadership for Project Management Excellence

Strengthening individual and organizational performance by developing leadership attributes in the context of managing projects and people is the focus of this workshop. Aimed at those in leadership and project management roles, the emphasis is on achieving balance between managing the project’s team members and the process. This highly personalized session is limited to 8–12 participants, and is designed to help you immediately apply what you learn to your unique situation and needs.

Who Should Attend?

This workshop is designed for those who currently manage project teams, anyone who anticipates managing project teams, as well as organizational leaders wishing to hone their leadership skills.

What Past Attendees Have Said...

“There was great interaction and good case studies, with valuable discussion and follow-up!”

“The interactive format kept me engaged the entire time!”

Our Instructors

Our workshop instructors are experienced in project management and working with the diverse needs of adult learners. They are committed to excellence in people development and project management.

Duration and Format

This is an interactive one-day workshop with a mix of large- and small-group activities. Practice scenarios help participants apply what they learn and stay focused on balancing people and process. Each participant receives tools to aid in efficient project management, including a takeaway kit of templates and sample project plans, status reports, communication plans and more.

How to Register

Three or more participants from the same organization are entitled to a 20% discount. The workshop can be customized to meet the specific needs of your organization. To offer the course for your organization or to license this content, contact us at info@drakerg.com.